REPORT

The Department of Computer Science and Design hosted an orientation Program for the 3rd semester Students of the department on "Outcome-Based Education."

Prof. Venugopala Rao A S, Head of the department enlightened the students on the subject. The following is a synopsis of the talk:

Key points of the talk are as briefed below

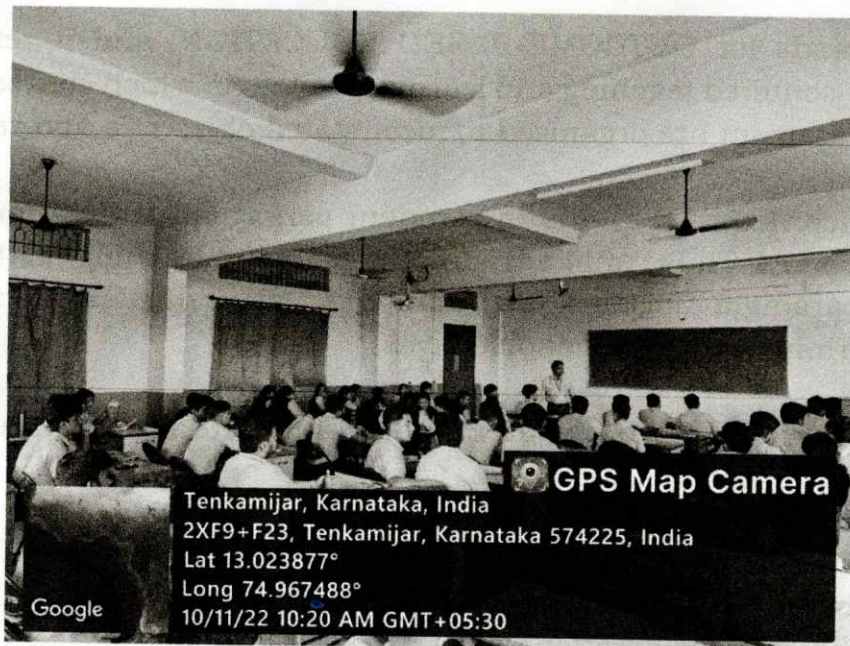

1. OBE stands for OUTCOME-BASED EDUCATION, and it refers to a student-centered teaching and learning system in which course delivery and assessment are organized to meet stated objectives and results.
2. It is concerned with evaluating student performance at various levels, i.e. outcomes. Thus, unlike traditional teaching-learning methods, the OBE paradigm focuses on mapping, assessing, and achieving predetermined educational objectives.
3. The educational objectives are not only intellectual in nature, but can also include features such as -
 - Identifying and resolving issues
 - The ability to simplify complicated learning approaches
 - Individual or group effort Dependability
 - Ethical considerations
 - Communication skills.
 - Ongoing education

Outcome-Based Education Aspects

1. A course may be defined as a hands-on, theory-based learning experience.
2. Course outcomes are statements that summarize significant and critical learning that students have to acquire and can reliably demonstrate at the end of a course.
3. A degree's concentration or discipline is referred to as a programme. It is a network of interconnected courses, co-curricular activities, and extracurricular activities that culminates in the awarding of a degree.

4. Program outcomes are more specific statements defining what students should be able to do by the end of the programme. Graduate Attributes are designed to be closely related to POs.
5. Program Educational Objectives are statements that characterize the expected achievements of graduates in their careers, particularly in the first few years following graduation.
6. Programme Specific Outcomes describe what students should be able to do in relation to a specific discipline by the time they graduate. A typical programme has two to four PSOs.
