About the guest:

Dr. Mohith P. Tahilian holds a Ph.D in the area of Congestion Control Mechanisms for the Next Generation Internet, completed from the Department of CSE at NITK Surathkal and he enjoys exploring the field of Computer Networks and Operating Systems, particularly network simulations, network programming and operating system design. He completed his M.Tech in Computer Science and Engineering with a Gold Medal in 2009 and received EMC Young Achiever of 2015 Award from EMC Corporation, Bangalore. He also received an Outstanding Reviewer Award from Elsevier Journal of Networks and Computer Applications in 2015.

Mohit has been using and contributing to open source projects since past 11 years. Together with his students at NITK Surathkal, Mohit has contributed 30,000+ lines of code towards developing new models for an open source network simulator (ns-3). He is a Member of the Steering Committee of ns-3 consortium, has been serving as a Member of the Technical Program Committee for Workshop on ns-3 (WNS3) since the past six editions held at Georgia Tech. USA, CTTC Spain, University of Washington at Seattle, FEUP Portugal, NITK Surathkal, India, and the University of Florence, Italy, respectively. He successfully hosted the 10th Annual Meeting of ns-3 consortium at NITK

Surathkal (first time in Asia) during June 2018. He has served as a mentor for Google Summer of Code (GSoC) 2017 and 2018, and is currently a mentor of GSoC 2019 for ns-3 organization. He has also served as an Organization Administrator for ns-3's participation in Google Code-In (GCI) 2018. He actively participated in GSoC Mentor Summit at Google Inc., Sunnyvale, California during October 2017 and 2018, and Google Code-In Grand Prize Winners Trip at San Francisco in June 2019.
