A report on Attainment of Quality in higher education through CO's & PO's

Dr.Ganesh Prasad briefing the participants

At the valedictory ceremony of the workshop

One Day Workshop on Mentoring the Mechanical Department titled "Attainment of Quality in higher education through CO's & PO's" was organized by Department of Mechanical Engineering. It was held in the department on 19/01/2019.

Dr. Ganesh Prasad, Dean, Professor and HOD, Department of Mechanical Engg. New Horizon College of Engineering, Bangalore was the resource person of the workshop.

Dr. Satyanarayan Welcomed the gathering, he briefly introduced the resource person & mentioned the importance of Course objectives & Program objectives.

Dr. Ganesh Prasad in his briefing explained the need for quality in today's competitive education sector. He emphasized on planning & scheduling entire semester classes. Which will be helpful to achieve following goals

- To make professional engineer
- To increase pass percentage
- To develop readymade graduates
- To assess the teaching learning based on feedback
- To make a student towards skills, health and family.
- To attract quality and global students

He mentioned about setting the objectives initially during the beginning of each academic year, he also suggested to collect data, data regarding the new admitted student in order to predict the new student who gains admission into the university i.e., falls under which group, low-risk (strong) students, medium-risk (or moderate) students or high-risk (or slight) students. Outcomes are the abilities the students acquire at the end of the program/course. To create an academic healthy environment in institutions selected under the programme. To achieve their own set targets for excellence and sustain the same with autonomy and accountability. To improve efficiency and effectiveness of the technical education in the state and institutions selected under the programme.

Dr. Ganesh Prasad reiterated different methods using which we can fulfil gap CO-PO attainment.
